PARK, JONATHAN TEHO, 60, died July 14, 2013 at home in Kailua, Oahu shortly before his 61st birthday. He is survived by his longtime partner, Wynona Tyson of Seattle, his brother, Joel T. Park, sister, Sandra (Teryl) Park, brother-in-law, John W. Hamburger, nieces Naomi Wile Hamburger and Sarah Hark Sun Hamburger, and nephew David Keola Hamburger. His parents were Lily Pok Hee Park and Harry Young Ho Park, both in Jonathan’s daily care in their late years, until their passing. A private memorial will take place with close family and friends. According to his mother’s notes in a baby book, Jonathan was born early in the morning under the Sun as ruling planet. As a young man, Jonathan loved spear fishing with his brother, spending hours in the water filling his mesh bag with good eating fish and squid. His love of the outdoors came full circle when he discovered sea kayaking in Kailua Bay. Collecting cars and bikes, Jonathan could fix what was broken, restoring castoffs to vintage, cherry condition. Have you ever seen a bike with koa wood pedals? Jonathan lived in Seattle for over 20 years, working in auto body by day and pursuing his interest in art and music. Following voice training under Eunice DeMello of Honolulu, he studied under the direction of Penelope "Penny" Vrachopoulos of the Peccadillo Players of Seattle. In supporting and lead roles, Jonathan performed in productions of light opera, including Iolanthe, Ruddygore, and The Mikado. He also performed in a stage play of Philip Kan Gotanda's "The Wash" in Seattle. Friends and family treasure Jonathan's charcoal drawings and oil paintings as well as curious objects he fashioned as jewelry or tools. In the Kailua High School band, Jonathan played the tuba and other wind instruments. He liked to find bargains at the local Salvation Army Thrift Store and garage sales. Finding an old coronet, he worked on its stuck parts and dented body until he could play it tunefully. Strumming the guitar or ukelele, Jonathan's sweet renditions of old songs could charm the birds out of trees. Jonathan sang in the choir of St. Clement's Episcopal Church in Makiki and, more recently, he was a beloved regular in the choir of the Han Sheng Music Association of Hawaii. He enjoyed learning to sing Chinese phonetically and deeply enjoyed the company of choir members. His nieces and nephew, Naomi, David, and Sarah, cherish memories of Christmas visits with Jonathan, bowling at Pali Lanes and singing karaoke at a local bar after a hearty dinner. Then, more treats and talking story. We will always love Jonathan for his fiercely singular ways and gentle heart. The sun, whose rays are all ablaze with ever-living glory, does not deny his majesty! [Honolulu Star-Advertiser 13 August 2013]

PATTERSON, MARY ANN DAISY, beloved mother of James Ross Patterson Jr. of Honolulu and Roderick Field Patterson of Portland, Oregon, died October 10 in Kaneohe after a brief illness. She was 89. Her primary occupation was as a stay-at-home mom, and she worked for a time as a grief counselor at Williams Mortuary, and as an instructor for Weight Watchers. But the best thing she ever did, she told her family, was to enlist in United States Marine Corps in 1944 at the height of World War II. In what was then called the Marine Corps Women's Reserve, she joined a select group of women whose service would "free a Marine to fight"—as the recruiting posters said. Born Mary Ann Dewein in Belleville, Illinois, on March 9, 1924, she attended local schools and starred in dance recitals. She attended the University of Washington in Seattle, then went to work in a downtown store located near the Marine Corps recruiting office. Inspired by the example of others, and seeking new structure and direction in her life, she enlisted. After basic training at "Camp Leatherneck" in Lejeune, North Carolina, she was stationed in San Francisco, where she worked in the Corps' Depot of Supplies. Discharged in 1946 with the rank of corporal, she married James Ross Patterson, a Navy veteran in San Francisco where their twin sons were later born. The family moved to Kaneohe in 1953, after a 12-hour flight from California and a night-time drive over the old Pali Road. Daisy plunged into life in her new home, taking Hawaiian language lessons from Annie Kanahale, and Chinese cooking instruction from Mary Sia. She was also active in PTA at Benjamin Parker Elementary School and was a Cub Scout den mother. Her husband died in 1998. A woman of her times, she was known for her matter-of-fact view of life, and terse catch phrases and slang expressions. Ask her how she was and the answer would range from "zilch," through "fair to middling," to "copacetic." She collected her favorite sayings which expressed her views on life and the one she used more often in a sort of verbal shrug, was "to what avail?" In excellent health almost her entire life, she became ill with pneumonia and was released for rehabilitation after a brief hospitalization, but did not recover. The last words she spoke to family from her bed before she died also came from her favorite sayings: "Do the best you can with what you have where you are." She will be inurned with full military honors at 8:30 a.m. November 1st at the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific. [Honolulu Star-Advertiser 26 October 2013]

PEDESKY, CHARLES FRANCIS “JACK”, February 3, 1924 – June 27, 2013 Jack Pedesky was an aviator. His skill and love for flying was paralleled only by his ability to tell a great story, which he gained from his vaudeville parents. Jack was also an early Southern California surfer. During early WWII, he attended USC and then joined the Navy graduating from NAS Pensacola in 1942. In mid-1943, his Ventura squadron transferred to Kaneohe and subsequently to Tarawa, and later Roi Island. There he flew numerous combat missions against enemy-held islands. After the war, Jack flew for Pan Am. In 1954 he was named Pilot of the Year by the ATA for successfully landing a DC4 on fire at night in a lightning storm on an unlit empty field without instruments, and then evacuating his 74 passengers with no loss of life. He later test flew the Super Guppy, then the world's largest airplane, flying space capsules and rockets from the makers to the launch sites for NASA. In 1960, he married Gerri and in 1975 they made Hawaii their home. Jack's amazing stories are his legacy and he and the Pacific Air Museum were a match made in heaven. In 2011, the Museum recognized him for his 1000 hours of volunteer docent service. Jack is survived by his wife, Gerri, son, Kurt Pedesky, daughter, Kristine (Michael) McGuire, grandsons, James & Mike McGuire, a large extended family and a worldwide circle of friends. These two events in remembrance of Jack will both be on July 18: 12:00 noon – Mass will be held at the Cathedral of Our Lady of Peace, 1184 Bishop St. followed by interment at the National Memorial Cemetery, Punchbowl at 1:40 p.m. 5:30 p.m. – Celebration of Life, Pacific Aviation Museum, Ford Island. In order to access Ford Island, guests must phone Loretta Fung at (808) 441-1008 by July 11 with their automobile details.
