Foley, Cornelia Macintyre, Born in Honolulu, Hawaii on January 31, 1909, the daughter of Malcolm and Florence Hall Macintyre, died on January 18, 2010, less than two weeks short of her 101st birthday. On her mother's side, she was a third generation descendant of Edwin Oscar Hall, who sailed with his wife from Boston, Massachusetts to Hawaii in 1835. He was a printer and a missionary. Cornelia's father, Malcolm, arrived from Scotland in the early 1900s and became manager for the Sun Trust Assurance Company of Canada for the Hawaiian Islands. Cornelia attended Punahou School, and continued to the University of Washington in Seattle where she received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Fine Arts. Between her sophomore and junior years, she continued her art studies for two years at the Slade Art School in London, England. Returning to Honolulu after her graduation from the University of Washington, she opened her own art studio and taught classes. She was an active member of the Honolulu Printmakers Association and the Honolulu Artists Group, winning several annual prizes. She designed and helped create a fountain on the campus of the University of Hawaii. In 1936, Cornelia married Navy Lieutenant Paul Foley, Jr., and left Hawaii. She and her husband were stationed at U.S. Naval bases located on both the east and west coasts of the mainland. During six years in Newport, Rhode Island, Cornelia held three one-woman shows as a member of the Newport Art Association. In 1959, Paul retired from the Navy and the couple took their family to Manhasset, New York, where Cornelia joined the Manhasset Art Association. She remained an active member for over forty years, serving one year as president. She continued to paint and exhibit, and was accepted as a member of the National Association of Women Artists in New York City. During her 48 years in Manhasset, she adopted a more contemporary style, and had two one-woman shows and joined another artist in a two-woman show at the Manhasset Public Library. She won numerous awards at various shows. On several occasions, one of her contemporary paintings was also chosen by the National Association of Women Artists to be a part of their countrywide traveling exhibitions. In 1992, an important retrospective exhibition covering two centuries of Hawaiian art was mounted at the Honolulu Academy of Arts. One of Cornelia's early works, from the 1930s, was included, and generated quite a stir among private collectors and galleries who eagerly sought out other examples of her Hawaiian-themed early style. Cornelia's husband, Paul, died in 1990 at the age of 81. She spent the final two years of her life in Severna Park, Maryland, outside of Annapolis. She is survived by her daughter, Jean Foley of Severna Park, MD; two of her sons, John Foley of Mount Airy, MD and Mark Foley of Milford, NY; her grandsons Christopher Griffin of Dallas, TX and David Stein of Severna Park, MD and two great-granddaughters. She will be interred in Arlington National Cemetery, alongside her husband. [Honolulu Star Bulletin 10 February 2010]
