Corey Lanakila Carroll - Climbing the steep ridges around Waimea Canyon on Kauai to hunt goats was a favorite recreation for Corey Lanakila Carroll, 27, of Kekaha. Last weekend, the successful hunter was returning with a knapsack full of meat when he fell more than 200 feet to his death. "He's been hunting since childhood," said his father, Albert Carroll of Kekaha. "He left us doing what he enjoyed doing, if it's any consolation. It's beautiful country that is the memory we have." Corey Carroll, a champion swimmer for the University of Hawaii in the late 1980s, had been a firefighter with the Kauai County Fire Department for the past 18 months. He started his service career as a Kauai policeman, following the footsteps of his father, a retired Kauai police lieutenant. "He always had this interest of helping people," said Carroll. "He had an easier time getting in the police department, but deep in his heart he wanted to be a fireman. When the chance came, he took it." Earlier, he had worked as a part-time firefighter with the federal government at the Barking Sands Pacific Missile Range Facility. Albert Carroll was summoned to the canyon early Sunday morning after his son's two hunting companions made their way out of the canyon and reported him missing. They had followed their usual routine, separating Saturday morning to hunt on separate ridges, and didn't become concerned until he failed to return to their camp late Saturday. The body was found by the crew of a county rescue helicopter. University of Hawaii swimming coach Daniel Arakaki said Corey Carroll was "really focused and intense when he was competing. Out of the competition, he was just the greatest guy." Arakaki recalled that Carroll came to the university from Wai meā High School, which had a small swimming program, and gained steadily in confidence and strength during his career as an athlete from 1986-90. "He was a very determined individual." Arakaki said he won in numerous Western Athletic Conference meets and competed in the NCAA championships. In 1988, he met the qualifying standard and competed in the U.S. Olympic trials in the 50-yard freestyle. In 1990, he was on the university's 200-yard freestyle relay team that got an All-American honorable mention. The UH 50-yard freestyle record is still Carroll's. Arakaki recalled that Corey Carroll dedicated one of his seasons to the memory of his brother, Tyler, who had just died of leukemia. Corey Carroll is survived by his parents, Albert and Gloria Carroll and grandmother Eleanor Borkenhagen. A funeral Mass will be said at 3 p.m. Saturday at St. Theresa Church in Kekaha. Friends may call after 1:30 p.m. Burial will be in Waimea Foreign Church Cemetery. The family asks that flowers be omitted and casual attire be worn. [SB 08/08/1996]

Rose H.T.L. Ching of Aina Haina, United Chinese Society's 1987 Model Mother of the Year and former assistant chairwoman of the Narcissus Festival, died Monday Feb. 12, 1996 . She was 87. She was married to Edward C.K. Ching for nearly 53 years until his death in 1981. They met in Honolulu, married in San Francisco and lived in Philadelphia while he earned a master's degree from the Wharton School of Business. Rose Ching's life included fleeing the invasion of China in the 1930s and resettling back in Hawaii. Those who knew her admired her zest for life, compassion and the way she took responsibility and always did her best. Her philosophy was to appreciate the good times and persevere in times of hardship. She faced disappointment with Chinese Stoicism and believed nothing is achieved without hard work. She belonged to the United Church of Christ. Edna Wong, a fellow church member, remembered Ching as very faithful in church attendance. She was very quiet, very humble, and very caring, Wong said. Ching was past president of the Palolo Chinese Home Auxiliary and did volunteer work at the Chinese History Center. She also was president of the Loui Shee Family Society and American Chinese Women's Club Women's Auxiliary, director and treasurer of the Chinese Women's Club and director and vice president of the Hawaii Chinese Civic Club. She led tours of Chinatown for 40 years . Also, she was an officer of the Hui Hauoli O Aina Haina Senior Citizen's Club where she once won the Club's Most Valuable Member Award. She was a volunteer for many years in various fund-raising drives. Ching was born in Honolulu. She is survived by daughters Phyllis Chong and Shirley Kam; son Howard; brothers John, Dr. Wallace and Herbert Loui; sisters Grace Lam, Leatrice Chock and Frances Chan; six grandchildren; and five great-grandchildren. Rev. Kim On Chong, retired minister and former chaplain at Mid-Pacific Institute, thought being a minister was the greatest job in the world. "If I had it to do over again, I would start again in the ministry, but I hope I'd do better than I have," the modest clergyman told a Star-Bulletin interviewer in 1988. Chong died Thursday Dec 5, 1996 in Honolulu. He was 86. Born in North Kohala, the 12th of 15 children of Chinese Christian immigrants, he felt the calling to become a minister early. When he moved to Honolulu in the mid-1920s, he worked as an office boy for Frank Cooke Atherton at Castle & Cooke. With Atherton's assistance, Chong graduated from the University of Hawaii in 1934 and Auburn Theological Seminary in Auburn, N.Y., in 1937. He was ordained in Honolulu in 1938, the same year he and his new wife, the former Pearl Au, moved to Maui for his first parish at Wailuku Chinese Church. After war started, the family returned in 1942 to Honolulu where Chong became the first full-time chaplain at Mid-Pacific, remaining there 33 years. He was credited with inspiring countless young people to grow spiritually and take a world view. Upon his retirement, he had some practical advice: "I think we all know or should know our limitations -- and we must fulfill ourselves within the individual sphere of our influence." Among those who regret his passing is Nanette Brierley, a 1975 Mid-Pac graduate. "I remember him being the type of man who always had a smile on his face, and he always had something to say to the kids that walked by him," she said. "It was always on a positive note. I'm sorry that he's passed away, and I'm sure there are a lot of people that will miss him." He is survived by wife Pearl; a son, the Rev. Frank Atherton Chong; daughters Barbara Gossard, Eleanore Atherton "Elly" Chong and Joy Chong-Stannard; sisters Florence Lum, Inez Ching and Alma Ching; and four grandchildren. Herbert Cornuelle, 76, an Ohio-born minister's son who made a giant imprint on Hawaii, died at his home last night of abdominal cancer. He was one of the state's most respected business and community leaders for more than 40 years. "I just can't say enough about him," said Randall Roth, University of Hawaii law professor, who was associated with the former Campbell Estate trustee on Hawaii Public Radio's "Price of Paradise" radio program. "He's probably touched more lives for the better than anyone I've ever met. I felt honored just to know him and to witness the kind of life he had and the way he made everything around him better. He had a lot of class." Cornuelle came to Hawaii in 1942 as a Navy ensign and returned in 1953 to become Dole Company's vice president. In 1958 he became Dole's youngest president at age 38. He led the United Fruit Company in Boston in 1963 and returned here in 1969 to head Dillingham Corporation. He joined the Campbell Estate in 1982 and retired as the board's chairman in 1990. "He was the dean of the business community and father of many fund-raising efforts to benefit those less fortunate," Dave McCoy, Campbell Estate's chief executive officer, said today. Friends and associates remember Cornuelle as a brilliant and competent man who was quiet and humble, who cared about people, had a great sense of humor and loved Hawaii. "He was a great believer in honesty and integrity in all things," his wife, Jean, said today. "The best way he could be remembered is with two words - 'be kind'." Oswald Stender, Bishop Estate trustee who was CEO of Campbell Estate when Cornuelle was board chairman, said his death is "one of the greatest losses to the state of Hawaii, not only for the business and nonprofit community but to a lot of Hawaiians he has helped over the years very quietly, and I'm one of them." Former Gov. George Ariyoshi said Cornuelle "was a real giant in the business community here but he also was a giant with a big heart for the community." Sen. Daniel K. Inouye said Cornuelle was "a good and extraordinary man. He was brilliant of mind and skillful in communication. He was a good business leader, but I also believed he would have made a good political leader. He served as a member of the directors or trustees of Dillingham Corp., The Boston Co., Hawaiian Telephone Co., Massachusetts Investors Growth Stock Fund, Libby, McNeil and Libby, Massachusetts Investors Trust, Queen's Medical Center, Punahou School, Kamehameha Schools, Hawaii Employers Council and the Aloha Council, Boy Scouts of America. But his wife said, "He didn't really feel that accomplishments were what were important. He felt the way you did things were important." Private family services are planned. Survivors include three sons, John and Bruce of California and Richard of Honolulu; daughter, Ann, of California, and five grandchildren. Donations may be made in Cornuelle's memory to Punahou School, the Nature Conservancy of Hawaii or St. Francis Hospice. [SB 22/08/1996]
