Malo, William A former sheriff of Kalaupapa and an international advocate for the human rights of Hansen's disease patients has died. William Malo of Kahului died June 24. He was 84. Malo lived on Oahu with his grandparents and was in the 11th grade at McKinley High School when his mother discovered he had Hansen's disease. He was sent to the Hansen's disease settlement in Kalaupapa in 1940 and was later joined by his sister and three younger brothers, who also suffered from the illness. Malo was cured of the disease after treatment, including the use of sulfone drugs, but stayed at the settlement and became sheriff in the 1950s. In 1965, despite damaged hands, Malo left the settlement to work for a construction company on Oahu and later moved to Maui to become a rancher. His younger brother, Makia Malo, said William's courage to move out of the settlement helped him to eventually make the same decision. "He was strong. He went out. He got a job and he did what he did," said Malo, who eventually earned a bachelor's at the University of Hawaii. William Malo also worked with officials from the International Association for Integration, Dignity and Economic Advancement, traveling around the world educating people about Hansen's disease and advocating human rights for its victims. IDEA coordinator Anwei Law said Malo served as a speaker for the group's traveling exhibit in Hawaii and California, as well as foreign countries, including Belgium, Brazil, South Africa and China. Law said Malo served as co-chairman of a panel at a conference in South Africa in 2005 about Hansen's disease and AIDS. "He felt so strongly about being a part of it, he paid his own way. Bill was someone working to ensure that people understood Kalaupapa," Law said. Law said she feels fortunate to have known Malo and others at Kalaupapa. "There's a generosity of spirit at Kalaupapa. ... I think Bill epitomized this generosity of spirit." Law said Malo also sponsored scholarships for a boy and girl in China who either were afflicted with the disease or whose parents were afflicted by it. "He was a great person," Law said. Public visitation takes place between 8:30 and 9:30 a.m. Saturday at Borthwick Norman's Mortuary in Wailuku, followed by general services from 9:30 to 10:45 a.m., then services by Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Burial takes place at 1 p.m. at Valley Isle Memorial Park in Haiku. Malo is survived by stepdaughters Susan Kauai, Paula Golden and Janet Carol Ryan; stepson Michael Ryan; and brother Makia. Mulligan, Sister Mary Jerome May 5, 2007 Sister Mary Jerome Mulligan, 93, did not believe in retirement. After 25 years of managing the finances at St. Theresa School in Liliha, she began to train a successor earlier this year. She had worked as a teacher, counselor and school administrator for more than 70 years, the last 39 in Hawaii. She died Saturday at St. Theresa Convent. She had been a member of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondelet for 76 years. "She loved children, and that's why she wanted to be here," said Sister John Joseph Gilligan, principal of the school. "The children gave her energy, even when she was sick." "Sister Jerome" had been the school financial administrator since 1983, responsible for paying bills, preparing budgets and keeping track of investments. "She was very knowledgeable," said Gilligan. Until two years ago, she also ran the program for instructing adult candidates for baptism in the Catholic Church. "The number of people she brought into the church was enormous," Gilligan said. Mulligan first came to Hawaii in 1940 after teaching at an Indian mission school in Wisconsin. She taught for 11 years at Holy Rosary School in Paia, Maui. During World War II the parish served as an informal USO for the 4th Division Marines in training on Maui. Mulligan and other nuns sewed vestments for priests from the silk from old parachutes. From discharged shells and silk, she created a lightweight portable tabernacle, a vessel for priests to carry consecrated communion hosts to servicemen in the field. She was born in Chicago. She was a teacher and principal in Missouri and Alabama. She was assigned to Kyoto, Japan, from 1959 to 1962, where she started a novitiate and was superior of the Carondelet House of Studies. She taught English to Kyoto University students and professors. After returning to Hawaii in 1968, she worked at St. Anthony School in Kailua and St. Joseph School in Waipahu. She is survived by nephew Stephen Mulligan, niece Alice Mulligan, grandnephew Steve Mulligan and grandnieces Amy Eichhorn-Mulligan and Jill Mulligan. A funeral Mass will be said at 11 a.m. May 26 at the Co-Cathedral of St. Theresa, 712 N. School St. Friends may call after 8 a.m. There will be a sharing of memories from 9 to 10:30 a.m. Lunch will be served after Mass. Burial will be at 2:15 p.m. in Diamond Head Memorial Park. Myers, Robert Robert Myers, an Associated Press bureau chief in San Francisco, Honolulu and Salt Lake City during a 15-year career with the news agency, has died. He was 76. Myers died June 22 at a Los Angeles hospital from complications of kidney failure. He had been in and out of the hospital since Christmas, his wife, Lee, said Tuesday. Myers was with the Associated Press from 1954 to 1969. In Hawaii he helped cover U.S. nuclear tests in the Pacific and the 1961 disappearance of Nelson Rockefeller's son Michael during a trip to New Guinea. Michael Rockefeller was declared dead in 1964. Myers, son of movie producer-director-writer Zion Myers, graduated with an English degree from the University of California-Los Angeles, where he was a sports editor on the Daily Bruin student newspaper. He was drafted for the Korean War, serving with the military police in Korea and also working as an editor for the newspaper Stars and Stripes, his wife said. "He always wanted to be a journalist," she said. At the time of his death, he was living in Los Angeles and was president and owner of Los Angeles-based Myers/Smith Inc., a management firm for professional engineering societies.
