Sakima, Akira, April 6, 2007 Former state Rep. Akira Sakima received many honors for his decades of service to the Kalihi Valley community, but he achieved legendary status in Okinawa for contributions to the homeland of his parents. "He was well respected in Okinawa. He was still being honored as the 'goat uncle,'" said Wayne Miyahira of the United Okinawan Association of Hawaii. The title referred to a post-World War II relief effort in which the young Kalihi pig farmer rode herd on 600 milking goats shipped to the war-torn country. He returned in 1960 with a goodwill mission of Hawaii legislators, and in 1963 as one of several agricultural experts invited by the U.S. Army to help develop Okinawa's agricultural industry. In 2000, the centennial of Okinawan immigration to Hawaii, Sakima was awarded the Order of the Sacred Treasure, Gold Rays with

Rosetta by the Japanese government for fostering good relations between nations. Sakima, 89, died April 6 in Honolulu. He grew up in Kalihi Valley, where his family raised pigs, and was later elected to represent the district in the state House of Representatives from 1959 to 1976. He continued to be a resource and adviser for his successors, said former state Rep. Dennis Arakaki. "I considered him a mentor. Not just me, but a lot of people went to him for advice on politics and issues in the district. He was very encouraging to younger people." "One of his main interests was education," said Arakaki. Sakima was chairman of the House Education and Higher Education committees. After leaving the Legislature, he was elected to the state Board of Education and to the 1978 state Constitutional Convention. He was on the board of Kokua Kalihi Valley for 30 years, dating back to when its health and social service programs were being started, said former executive director Joris Watland. "He was kind of the spirit of the board and the community. The recreation center in Kalihi Valley is there because Akira was there, setting aside state money even though it is a city project," Watland said. In 2000, Kalihi community organizations established the Akira Sakima Endowment Fund with the Kalihi Valley Community Foundation to endow programs for children and families. Sakima had served on the boards of the Kalihi Palama Community Council, the Susannah Wesley Community Center and Kalihi YMCA. He was active in the United Okinawan Association of Hawaii, which honored him as 1985 "Uchinanchu of the Year" for service to the community and perpetuating the Okinawan culture. Sakima, whose hog farm was displaced to Waianae with the construction of Likelike Highway, organized the Island Pork Producers Co-op to seek fair prices, and served as manager of the organization in the 1950s. He later joined International Savings and Loan and became manager of the Kalihi branch. He was a minister and leader of the Hawaii Community of Christ church in Kalihi for several years. "He was a very simple, very humble man," said Watland. "He never saw himself as a person with position and power. He was there to serve the community, an unselfish person." Watland announced Sakima's death to the Kalihi Neighborhood Board last week. "I told them we just lost one of the greatest people of the last century for Kalihi." A memorial service will be held at 6:30 p.m. April 29 at the Hawaii Okinawa Center in Waipahu. Friends may call after 5 p.m. The family requests no flowers. He is survived by wife Jane; son Howard of Elk Grove, Calif.; daughter Ellen Higa; brothers Kaoru, Kogoro and Yatsugi; sister Tomiko Miyashiro; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Setliff, Margaret April 15, 2007 Former state law librarian Margaret Setliff, the first president of the American Civil Liberties Union-Hawaii Chapter, died Sunday. She was 84. "Margaret has always been and continues to be a person with a 'twinkle in her eyes.' Underneath that kindly and concerned demeanor, however, lies the steadfast articulate and serious devotion to bring about the promised on equality and justice for all," the ACLU said about Setliff. Setliff was born in Providence, R.I., on May 28, 1922. She served as an instructor in the English department at Wayne University in Detroit and as a librarian in the Joint Reference Library at the University of Chicago before she moved to Hawaii in 1953. She had a lifelong passion for books as well as social justice, government and freedom, said Setliff's husband of 42 years, James Setliff. Margaret Setliff delved into a campaign to establish Hawaii as the 50th state. She worked closely with territorial legislators Patsy Mink and Daniel Inouye while working as a research librarian at the Legislative Reference Bureau at the University of Hawaii from 1953 to 1958. In 1965, Setliff met her husband at an organizational meeting for the ACLU-Hawaii Chapter. That same year, the couple got married, and she was selected to be the first president of ACLU-Hawaii. She was appointed chief law librarian in 1967 and served in that position until she retired in the late 1970s. As chief law librarian, "she nurtured the careers of hundreds of young attorneys and was intimately involved in preparation and documentation of most significant court decisions made during the state's first two decades," Setliff's husband said in a written statement. Setliff volunteered for and served in numerous organizations, including the Legal Aid Society of Hawaii, where she served as a board member. In 1975, Setliff was presented with the Hawaii Bar Association's Liberty Bell Award. She also was a recipient of the ACLU-Hawaii Allan Saunders Award in 1978. Since the early 1990s, Setliff and her husband had been living in Atlanta. "Her commitment to justice was inspirational," said ACLU-Hawaii Executive Director Vanessa Chong, adding that she had a reputation of being thoughtful and indefatigable. Besides her husband, Setliff is survived by nephew David Birdsell and great-nephew Cory Birdsell. Services are pending. (Honolulu Star Bulletin 20 April 2007)

Santos, Lincoln Emeterio Delos, 52, Dec. 24, 2006 Hawaii-born Lincoln Emeterio Delos Santos, a Saipan businessman and active community member and a former Republican Party officer in the Northern Marianas, died Christmas Eve at his home in Saipan. He was known as "Mr. Lee," Delos Santos served from 2004 to 2006 as treasurer for the Republican Party of the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, and was elected by the party's general membership. "He's the first non-Chamorro who actually got involved in local politics," said Juan Reyes, former Republican Party chairman who served through December. "The community is pretty small," Reyes said. "To get somebody elected to hold that kind of position is pretty hard. "Since he came here 16 years ago, he pretty much proved himself," Reyes said. "He's a unique guy, the first Hawaiian accepted by the locals." Northern Marianas legislator Arnold Palacios said, "He was very effective in getting the party finances straightened out, very effective in the fundraising for the party." Palacios described him as hard-working and amiable, sacrificing personal time for the party. Delos Santos, part-owner, general manager and co-founder of No Ka Oi Termite and Pest Control (Saipan Inc.), left Maui in 1990 to help start the business on Saipan. The local boy from Hawaii helped build a successful business "just with good honest business practices," said Joey Lopez, corporate manager for No Ka Oi Termite and Pest Control (Guam Inc.) (Saipan Inc.). He was heavily involved in fundraising activities for schools including the Northern Marianas College, serving on its board of directors, and supporting local sports teams and community projects. Born in Honolulu, Delos Santos was a 1973 Farrington High School graduate. Shima, George M., 73, Dec. 28, 2006 George M. Shima, co-founder of the real estate company Spaces Ltd. and a part-owner of the Inn of the Sixth Happiness restaurant in Kalihi, died Dec. 28 at his home. "He was respected by his peers, who often described him as a humble and trustworthy man who was loyal to his friends and his country," said family friend Harvey Hakoda. Shima founded and ran Spaces Ltd. with Walter Maeshiro after retiring from the Air Force as a major in 1972. Shima, who shortened his last name from Shimabuku, was born on July 8, 1933, in Makawao, Maui. His parents moved to Oahu when he was a teenager, said his daughter, Alice Shima. He graduated from Kahuku High School in 1952. Alice Shima said her father enlisted in the Air Force immediately after graduation. Hakoda said Shima's first assignment was as a navigator with the Military Air Transport Command. "While assigned there, he flew with the All Hawaii Air Crew on a C-97 aircraft piloted by the noted entertainer Don Ho," Hakoda said. Hakoda said Shima's military awards and commendations included an Air Medal for flying on the first air rescue mission into North Vietnam. "He and his air crew completed a daring water rescue, flying an amphibious SA-16 aircraft," he added. Shima later served as a navigator with the 6594th Test Group, based at Hickam Air Force Base, snaring parachuting capsules that contained film from orbiting Key Hole spy satellites. "Air Force navigators of his era guided their aircraft by 'shooting the stars' and relied on lesser electronic and communication systems than are available today," Hakoda said. Shima was a member of the Shurei Club. Funeral services will be held at 6 p.m. today at Hosoi Mortuary. Inurnment will be at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday at the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific at Punchbowl.
