Lake, Tommy C. Jr., Renowned bass player....., of the Kahauanu Lake Trio, dedicated 50 years of his life to playing Hawaiian music locally and abroad. Lake's last performance was on Nov. 4, 2005, the day the Kahauanu Lake Trio was inducted into the Hawaiian Music Hall of Fame. The trio became the first group to be inducted. "I don't think I could find another bass player like him," said brother and fellow group member Kahauanu Lake. "Impossible." Lake died at his home in Kailua on July 3. He was 76. According to his wife, Lorri, Lake had been sick for a year and a half, but still wanted to play at the concert last November. The two also went on a cruise in Norway in June 2005 and to Las Vegas in January. "The man loved to travel," Lorri Lake said. "Just the week before he passed away, he was talking about taking another trip." Lake also liked to teach, his wife said, adding that he'd help "anybody who wanted to learn how to play bass." One of those people her husband mentored is an inmate currently behind bars in Oklahoma. The duo had been collaborating on a song until the day Tommy died, his wife said. Lake was writing the words, the inmate is writing the music. Lorri said she is going to mail the words her husband had written to the inmate, hoping the song will get done. That song would just add to Lake's legacy. The Kahauanu Lake Trio started playing in 1955. Tommy played the bass, Kahauanu played the 'ukulele and Al Machida was the guitarist. The three graced audiences with their three-part harmony at Waikiki's Halekulani and the Surf Room at Royal Hawaiian, in Japan and on the Mainland. "We played in foreign countries," Kahauanu said, "but Hawai'i is the most important place." The trio recorded their first album, "Hawaiian Style," in 1964. They recorded five more albums and had two "Best of" compilations. " 'Pua 'Ahihi' was his signature song," Lorri Lake said. The group retired in 1986. Lake also retired from Hawaiian Electric Co. in 1989 as an electrical engineer, after 36 years of service. The family will hold a private service at the end of the month. Lake is survived by his wife, Lorri; sons, Sam, Russell and Whitney; daughter, Laola; brother, Kahauanu; and five grandchildren, Sanoe, Kaniu, Kalae'a, Kuakini and Makana. Lorri said she will always remember her husband for his music and for the love he had for his grandchildren. "He always hoped that they would learn," Lorri said. "He hoped one of the five would follow in his footsteps. (Honolulu Advertiser 11 July 2006)

Lee, Herbert K.H. June 7, 2006 HERBERT K.H. LEE, a territorial legislator known as friend to the Japanese-American community, died June 7 in Honolulu at age 94. Lee successfully fought the Yokohama Specie Bank in court to secure the release of local citizens' funds, which had been frozen during World War II. And he helped re-establish mail service between Okinawa and Hawaii immediately after the war. Lee was a civil rights champion who fought for the release of Japanese-American internees during World War II. Born in Waikiki in 1912, he was one of 10 children whose family ran a small store. He attended McKinley High School, the University of Hawaii and the University of Michigan Law School. Lee, an attorney and businessman, served 15 years in the territorial House and Senate during the 1940s and '50s. During his tenure, Lee pushed for statehood, traveling to Washington, D.C., to advocate the case before Congress. As a member of the statehood commission and chairman of the Bill of Rights subcommittee, he helped draft the state Constitution and was one of its original signers. As senator, he urged the development of tourism and sponsored a measure that would create a commission to establish a long-range program for the development of recreational and tourist facilities, even offering loans for new hotel construction. The legislator also supported development of affordable housing and fought to improve the school system. After his political career, Lee involved himself in real estate ventures in Asia and Alaska. Lee's family said he enjoyed traveling and meeting people of different backgrounds throughout his life. He also loved sports, excelling in basketball, baseball, swimming, tennis and golf and played on UH's 1931-32 championship basketball team. He is survived by wife Irene Yap Lee, sons Herbert Jr. and Gordon Douglas Lee. Private services were

Lee, Robert T.Y., 68, pilot, KANE'OHE — In the 1950s Robert T.Y. Lee was the youngest drag racer at the Kahuku drag strip. In 2003 the retired United Airlines pilot was one of the oldest drag racers at Hawaii Raceway Park. Lee, who had a lifelong love of fast cars and flying, died on Monday after an 11-year battle with cancer. He was 68. Lee was born on May 20, 1938, in Pu'unene Hospital and graduated from Roosevelt High School in Honolulu in 1956. He joined the Air Force right out of high school, said Rebecca Ward Lee, his wife of 23 years and president of Ward Research Inc. He returned to Hawai'i after leaving the Air Force in 1960 and started Jupiter Airways air taxi service, which was one of the first to fly into Ka'anapali, Maui, Ward Lee said. He also provided air transportation for the state Department of Health and to Kalaupapa, a settlement where people with Hansen's disease were banished in the 1800s. He began flying for Aloha Airlines in 1963 and later flew for United. He retired as a captain in 1995 after he was diagnosed with cancer. "He had an incredibly strong will and determination," Ward Lee said. "I had such admiration for how he handled all of those years, particularly the very recent past." "He was the consummate professional as an airline pilot. One of the things that was very endearing was he really was a pilot who valued everyone in an organization. No one's job was more important than anyone else's." Lee was very committed to his family of six children from a previous marriage and maintained close ties with his former wife, Sandra Lei Lee, Ward Lee said. "He and his first wife, Sandy, raised our kids to value family and doing things together as a family," she said. "Togetherness was very important to him." And so was his German shepherd, Paka, who often was left in his Dodge Ram with the engine running and the air conditioner blasting to keep the dog cool as Lee dined at Zippy's in Kailua. Lee is survived by his wife, Rebecca Ward Lee; sons, Robert, Michael and Gregory; daughters, Bonnie Lee Woods, Tracy Turner-Pain and Marnie Lee McClain; brother, Thomas; 13 grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren. He also is survived by his former wife and lifetime friend, Sandra Lei Lee. Visitation is at 9 a.m. Saturday at Nu'uuanu Memorial Park; service is at 10 a.m. Aloha attire. Donations may be made in his memory to the Hawaiian Humane Society, 2600 Wai'ala'e Ave., Honolulu, HI 96826. (Honolulu Advertiser 13 July 2006)

Loy, Namakaokalani Lee June, 26 2006 Genesis Namakaokalani Lee Loy, a retired Hawaiian Telephone Co. supervisor and a founder of the Hawaiian sovereignty movement on the Big Island, died yesterday at his home in the Panaewa Hawaiian Homes area of Hilo. He was 86. "He was the founder and advocate for restoring the Hawaiian nation," said Patrick Kahawaiolaa, a longtime protester of the policies of the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands. Retired Catholic priest George De Costa remembered a day in 1987 when Lee Loy came to him. "We have to make people aware and work towards sovereignty," Lee Loy told De Costa. "That word was not even used at that time," De Costa said. Lee Loy and others wanted to restore Ka Lahui Hawaii, the Hawaiian Nation, but they could find no place to meet to write a constitution. "I told them to use our church hall," said De Costa, who was the priest at Malia Puka O Kalani Catholic Church. Ka Lahui eventually grew to a membership of 12,000. Mililani Trask, the longtime, former head of Ka Lahui, issued a statement from the United Nations Human Rights Council meeting in Switzerland. "I am here in Geneva doing what he educated me to do," she said. "I really wouldn't be who I am without his guidance. He prepared me to do this work. He was my dear friend," she said. In the 1970s, Lee Loy joined one lawsuit and persuaded his son Lambert to file another, both against the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands, said Lee Loy's oldest son, Gerard. The outcome was the opening of Hawaiian Homes farm lots at Panaewa, which the department had been unwilling to do until that time. In recent years, as a member of the Royal Order of Kamehameha, Lee Loy had opposed NASA's plan to build "Outrigger" telescopes around the two giant Keck telescopes on Mauna Kea, feeling that telescopes show disrespect for the sacredness of the mountain. Although legal challenges by the Royal Order and others could not directly block the Outriggers, they slowed the approval process until a time early this year when funding for the telescopes was no longer available. Mass will be said at 10 a.m. Thursday at Malia Puka O Kalani Catholic Church. Burial to follow at Homelani Memorial Park. Friends may call from 8 a.m. Lee Loy is survived by wife Elizabeth; sons Gerard, Blase, Lambert, Sean, Emmett, Hilary, and Ian; daughters Bridgit Bales, Maureen Namaka Rawlins, Hedwig Nakoolani Warrington, Elizabethanne Masaoka and Monica Morris; brothers Hartwell and Elijah; sister Lehua Weatherwax; 27 grandchildren; and 12 great-grandchildren. Lyman, David Jan. 29, 2006 Everyone who knew David Lyman knew the ocean was his life, from ship captains whose vessels he brought safely into harbor to youngsters he encouraged into maritime careers. The veteran ship's pilot died Sunday night after falling into the ocean off Nawiliwili Harbor on Kauai. Lyman, 62, fell while climbing down a ladder on the cruise ship Island Princess. He had just guided the ship out of harbor and was returning to the harbor pilot boat. Kauai Fire Chief Robert Westerman said Lyman was injured by the pilot boat. Firefighters of the Lihue company attempted to resuscitate him, according to a written announcement. Lyman was pronounced dead at Wilcox Hospital. U.S. Coast Guard marine safety investigators are investigating the death. The cruise ship was permitted to continue on its interisland voyage, and investigators will interview crew members and passengers along the route, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Brooksann Epiceno. Lyman, a pilot for 30 years, held the top rank of captain and was qualified to pilot the largest ships. He was "well known not only throughout Hawaii, but well across the United States and throughout the international seafaring world," said Tom

Heberle, president of the Hawaii Pilots Association, in a written statement. "We will miss Dave's years of experience and expertise." Lyman was a crewman on the Polynesian Voyaging Society's sailing canoe Hokule'a on its 1976 maiden voyage and captain of the March 1978 voyage that ended when the canoe capsized south of Molokai. Lyman and 15 other crew members were rescued by the Coast Guard. Crew member Eddie Aikau, who left the overturned boat on a surfboard to seek help, was never found. "He really loved what he was doing, everything about ships and the ocean," said fellow Hokule'a crewman Bruce Blankenfeld. He said Lyman's "deep history of a tie to the ocean ... was both practical and spiritual. He was educated on the practical side as far as seamanship and piloting. Being a part-Hawaiian, he understood the spiritual side of life. He had a deep respect for the ocean and the spiritual side of being on the ocean." James "Kimo" Lyman said his brother was "instrumental in getting a lot of kids to go the maritime schools. He did a lot of speaking to schoolchildren. ... He would speak about his love of the ocean ... write letters of recommendation, take them out on the job to show them the ropes, tell about how many places they can see and how much they can earn." Kimo Lyman, pilot of the Honolulu Fire Department's Honolulu harbor fireboat, said he and his brother shared the captain role on the 1995 Hokule'a voyage from Vancouver, Canada, to San Diego and participated in yacht racing and sailing between Hawaii and the West Coast. He is survived by wife Laurie Ikehara-Lyman, son Belden, daughters Rebekka and Danielle, brothers Kimo and Daniel, and sister Marion Lyman-Mersereau. (Honolulu Star Bulletin 31 January 2006)
