Sanford "Sandy" Parker was one of the old-time business leaders of Wahiawa, a link with the past before encroaching subdivisions, the demise of agriculture and the flooding-ebbing tide of military customers changed the Central Oahu town's character. A polo fan and former player, he was a fixture at the games at Mokuleia.

Born in Schenectady, N.Y., Parker left the Merchant Marine when he arrived in Hawaii in the 1930s and went into the real estate business before the post-World War II building boom. He was the developer of Wahiawa Shopping Center in the mid-1950s and of several small housing developments. Parker, 86, died Tuesday Jan 21, 1997 at his Mokuleia home. His son John recalls what a struggle his father had to persuade other businesses to move into his California Avenue mini-mall. "That's when shopping centers were not a proven quantity. I remember he would talk to people until he was blue in the face, but they argued, they wanted to be on Kam Highway," John Parker said. Sandy Parker was one of the charter members of the Wahiawa and Waialua Rotary Clubs. He served for years on the Army's community advisory committee. Longtime friend Drury Melone repeated one of the stories that Parker liked to tell on himself. "World War II came along and Sandy was made the warden, checking that nobody had lights showing (during blackout). He was walking across a vacant lot one dark night when he heard footsteps. When he stopped, the footsteps stopped. He took off at a high speed for home. The next morning they found this old horse eating grass in that lot. It had been following him on the path. He always said, a good thing he didn't have a gun. Horses were an important part of Parker's life. He played on local polo teams until he was 65. "In 1975 he lost an eye playing," said John Parker. "He quit playing but was still going to games, even when he was in a wheelchair." Survivors are sons John S. and Robert H.; daughter Pamela Parker Young; brother Hunter C.; five grandchildren; and a great-grand child. Memorial services will be at 6 p.m. Monday at Mililani Mortuary-Waipio, makai chapel. The family requests that casual attire be worn and that monetary donations be sent to Wahiawa General Hospital. Siegfried M. Poesch - to some it might have been the luxurious Third Floor Restaurant. To the customers, it was Siggy's restaurant. Siegfried M. Poesch's to be correct, says Don Dickens, manager of the Hawaiian Regent Hotel. Poesch, 57, longtime manager of Third Floor Restaurant, later called Secret, in the Hawaiian Regent, died Wednesday Feb 5, 1997 in Queen's Hospital. "Siggy was probably one of the finest restaurant managers I've known," said Dickens, now vice president and general manager of the Mauna Lani Bay Hotel on the Big Island. Poesch was with Third Floor/Secret some 20 years, opening the luxury Waikiki restaurant in 1972. It closed about two years ago. During its heyday, it was known for its strolling musicians who went from table to table entertaining guests. "He had complete control of the restaurant and the staff," Dickens said, adding Poesch provided intensive training for the staff every day. Customers came first. "He was always resistant to raising prices," Dickens said. "I remember the first time we raised prices after I got there. I literally had to force him to put them in," Dickens said. Poesch also worked at Hau Tree Lanai in the New Otani Kaimana Beach Hotel. Born in Germany, Poesch is survived by
