Takitani, Aiko, After a long workday in the family business, ..... and her husband, Mamoru, would head home to spend hours in their attic tinkering with a recipe for chocolate-covered macadamia nuts. Decades later, the Takitanis' experiments would serve as a foundation for Hawaiian Host Chocolates, which now employs 200 people and is the largest exporter of chocolate-covered mac nuts. Aiko Takitani died on June 28 at the age of 92, leaving a legacy of community service. "The Takitanis were true pioneers in the candy manufacturing industry," said Dennis Teranishi, vice chairman and chief executive officer of Hawaiian Host Inc. "Chocolate-covered macadamia nuts are quite common today, but it was Mr. and Mrs. Takitani who developed the entire product category." A former Japanese language schoolteacher, Takitani co-founded Hawaiian Host with her husband on Jan. 1, 1960. In the early days of the company, she drove a station wagon around town to deliver the company's candy products. In 1988, she became the company's chairwoman after her husband died. Takitani and her husband were active in the local community. Because they had no children of their own, the couple set up the Mamoru and Aiko Takitani Foundation to award scholarships to students of local public and private high schools. Since 1993, the foundation has given out more than $1.1 million in scholarships. "She was not one to brag and talk about herself, so many people didn't know how much she gave back to the community," said Hideo Kondo, president of the Takitani Foundation. Takitani is survived by nieces and nephews. Funeral services will be private. In lieu of flowers, family members requested that donations be made in her memory to the Honpa Hongwanji Hawaii Betsuin. The address is 1727 Pali Highway, Honolulu, HI 96813. Donations also could be made to the Takitani Foundation at P.O. Box 10687, Honolulu, HI 96816-0687. (Honolulu Advertiser 14 July 2006)

Taylor, Ken Nov. 25, 2006 TUCSON, Ariz. A decorated World War II fighter pilot whose heroism was depicted in the film "Tora! Tora! Tora!" has died at the age of 86. Ken Taylor earned the Distinguished Service Cross and the Purple Heart for his heroic actions during the attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941. Taylor and fellow pilot George Welch were two of the first decorated heroes of the war. Taylor died of natural causes Nov. 25 in an assisted-living home in Tucson, his son Ken Taylor Jr. said. The son said Taylor was born and raised in Oklahoma, where he attended the University of Oklahoma for two years before he decided to join the military. His first assignment was in Hawaii at Wheeler Field, near Honolulu. On the morning of Dec. 7, 1941, Taylor woke up to the sound of planes flying low overhead. Once it became clear the Japanese were attacking, Taylor and Welch called to have their planes prepped for takeoff, Ken Taylor Jr. said. Once they took to the sky, Taylor shot down two Japanese planes and Welch shot down four. Taylor ended his Air Force career in the mid-1960s, his son said. He later became commander of the Alaska Air National Guard for three years. He retired in 1985 after a run in the aviation insurance industry. Ken Taylor Jr. said his father decided to split his time between Tucson and Alaska in the mid-1990s. His health declined in the last couple of years after he broke his hip. Taylor is also survived by his wife, Flora, a daughter, three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. "He would want to be remembered mostly as a good father, husband, grandfather and great-grandfather," Ken Taylor Jr. said. "He was very loyal and dutiful, and to him that was more important than what he did in the war." Funeral services will not be held, but arrangements were pending for Taylor's internment at Arlington National Cemetery, his son said. (Honolulu Star Bulletin 5 December 2006)

THEILER, SISTER KATHERINE left Hawaii in 1974, she had spent a 30-year career as an educator and school principal in island Catholic schools. She returned a few years later to launch a second career, co-founding the Spiritual Life Center, which brought a new ecumenical movement of contemplative prayer to the Christian community in Hawaii. "She had two very full life careers; she never stopped learning, growing," said Sister Joan Chatfield, a member of the Maryknoll religious order to which Theiler belonged for 65 years. Theiler, 87, died July 24 in St. Francis Hospice. She served as principal of Maryknoll High School from 1964 to 1974 and was previously a teacher at the school and the principal of St. Michael School in Waialua and St. Anthony School on Maui. Former Gov. John Burns appointed her to the state Board of Social Services in 1965. But most people remember Theiler as a spiritual guide. "She lived and embodied what she taught -- a wonderful mentor," said the Rev. Dan Hatch, interim pastor of Community Church of Honolulu. "She was spiritual director to many people," a role that "helps a person be aware of how God is moving in their life ... bringing you into a three-way conversation with God." The Spiritual Life Center was focused on bringing contemplative prayer to Hawaii. "She was very prophetic in that sense," said hospice chaplain Clarence Liu, a former priest. "Classically, a prayer uses biblical images, such as Jesus the Good Shepherd." In the contemplative form, "one has to enter the silence of their heart to meet the silence of God. It's the difference between describing someone and meeting them. It was a profound kind of awakening for the Catholic Church, back into prayer that was lost for many years." Maxine Pollock said, "I think of her as my spiritual mother. For 25 years she listened to me. This woman believed in me at times when I couldn't believe in myself." Pollock credited Theiler with encouraging her to complete studies and become a spiritual director, establishing her own Scrub Bucket Ministries. Since 1992, Theiler carried on a special ministry with women in the Hawaii Alcoholism

Foundation Sand Island Treatment Center, helping them through the 12-step recovery process, Chatfield said. Theiler was born in Tomahawk, Wis. She is survived by brother Carl Theiler of Tomahawk and sister Nell Ann Virgil of Eagen, Minn. A funeral Mass will be said at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Newman Center, 1941 East-West Center Road. Burial will be Monday in Diamond Head Memorial Park. The family suggests that in lieu of flowers, donations be made to the Maryknoll Sisters, 2880 Oahu Ave., Honolulu 96822. Titchen, John "Jack"(1921-2006) captured Hawaii history on film during his 25 years as a Star-Bulletin photographer. His coverage of international celebrities, erupting volcanos, disasters and sports contests produced photographs that appeared in newspapers and magazines around the world and won him several professional awards. Titchen, 84, died Friday in Kaiser Medical Center at Moanalua. "He was an enterprise shooter ... with a different view of the world around him," said Dean Sensui, former Star-Bulletin photographer. Once faced with the static shot of an official entourage, Titchen ducked into a restroom on the heels of former South Vietnamese leader Nguyen Cao Ky to capture the government leader combing his hair before his public appearance. The picture ran in papers around the world. "He had this offbeat sense of humor ... and an elfish smile," Sensui said. He said Titchen worked during a time before super security put the media behind barricades. His slight stature and persistent but not pushy demeanor got him close enough to shake hands with celebrities he photographed, including every president from Franklin D. Roosevelt to Bill Clinton, and an array of show business and sports stars. Titchen retired from the newspaper in 1984 and continued to work as a freelance photographer for other publications until recently. His 1967 photos of Duke Kahanamoku were displayed last year at Duke's restaurant in the Outrigger Waikiki Hotel. A retrospective show of his art appeared at Pictures Plus in Kahala Mall in March 2003. "He wanted us to remember all the history," said Gail Morohoshi of King Photo Service, who recalled the photographer as a storyteller with anecdotes about many photos he took. "We have so many good memories of him walking into our place." Her husband, Take, said the only picture he has on the wall at the Honolulu shop shows the 1960 Kilauea volcano eruption at Kapoho, a Titchen shot that has been reproduced many times. Titchen was born in Sydney. He served in the Australian Merchant Marine and U.S. Coast Guard during World War II. He graduated from the Los Angeles Art Center School and worked on newspapers in New York state and New England. After retirement, he did freelance photography in Australia for three years. In recent years he was active in the AARP. He is survived by wife Katharine; son John; daughters Denise Carpenter, Leilani Studenka, Carol Yee and Kanani Titchen; sister Margaret Titchen; six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.
