Bing Fai Lau, who for more than half a century served Iolani School in almost every capacity including accountant, business manager, coach and athletic director -- died Wednesday Aug 4, 1999. He was 93. Headmaster Val Iwashita described Lau as "a remarkable man" and active into his 90s. "He was very supportive of Iolani School and very supportive of what we try to do in the community," Iwashita said. "He also regularly attended events at Iolani. He was a very special spirit and he touched everyone around him, especially all of us at Iolani." William Lee, Iolani dean of students since 1963, noted that "Iolani had been his life." "He has done so much for Iolani," said Lee, who graduated with one of Lau's sons in 1953. "As business manager and school accountant, he was the keeper of the purse so that Iolani School could operate in those rough early years. He also was an avid golfer and one of the founding fathers of the Narcissus Festival." Lau, who retired in 1971, served under eight headmasters and watched the school progress through various stages and campuses. His affiliation with Iolani began when the school was on the grounds of St. Andrew's Cathedral. He moved with the school when it opened a Nuuanu campus, and then went to its current Ala Wai site. In a school history published a few years ago, Lau recalled that after spending 52 years at Iolani he considered the school his "life. "Not everything was hunky-dory, but the world isn't either," Lau wrote. "Iolani School in those days didn't pay very much, but I was comfortable. We had free meals in Nuuanu. I still had money in my pocket." Lau arrived from Canton in 1919 at the age of 13. As a student, he worked at Oahu's pineapple canneries to pay for his tuition. When Iolani moved to Nuuanu, he found himself sleeping in a tent while a dormitory was built. At Iolani, Lau learned English and rose to become valedictorian of the class of 1928, the first to graduate from the Nuuanu campus. He also was president of many community associations, including the United Chinese Society, and was honored in 1987 by the United Chinese Society as the model father of the year. He is survived by his wife, Carrie; two sons, Ron and Herbert; sister, Helen Ing; and four grandchildren. Funeral services are pending.

Joseph Lee served in two World Wars. The death of Joseph K. Lee, 102, apparently leaves nine surviving World War I veterans in the state. Lee leaves Russell W. Voorhees, 102, with American Legion Kau Tom Unit No. 11, which also was Lee's affiliate, and William Frank Steer, 98, and Leoncio Balan, 100, both with the American Legion Wahiawa post, among the last vets. Gabriel Perez, associate director of the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs in Honolulu, said they are the three surviving veterans on Oahu. There are as many as six more on the other islands, he said. Lee, a veteran of World Wars I and II, died Wednesday in the Veterans Affairs Center for Aging at Tripler Hospital. "He was a pretty active guy for 102," said Solomon M.L. Kam, second vice commander, Kau Tom Unit. Bernard Lee, adjutant, American Legion Department of Hawaii, thinks the number of World War I surviving veterans had dwindled to about five statewide by 1994, when Lee and two other World War I vets, all Kau Tom members, were honored by that unit. Lee, a world traveler, joined the Army in 1918 when he was 21. Immediately after the Pearl Harbor attack, Lee -- a National Guardsman -- went back on active duty as a mess sergeant. He was a member of the Hawaii National Guard for 20 years, then also served on Guadalcanal. After the wars, he worked more than 30 years as an accountant with Chun Chong Fruit and Vegetable Co. Lee belonged to the Ket On Society, Chee Kung Tong Society, Golden Age Club and the Ala Wai Bridge Club. An avid player, he taught bridge until he turned 90. He taught ballroom dancing until he was 70. A Honolulu native, he attended Kauluwela School, Royal School and McKinley High School. Alfred "Freddy" Los Banos Revered veteran dies at 76 A sniper may have shot Army Master Sgt. Alfred "Freddy" Los Banos during the Korean War, but the wound never stopped him. Paralyzed from the waist down by a sniper's bullet in 1950 while serving with the 5th Regimental Combat Team, Los Banos used a wheelchair. He overcame his disability and served on numerous veterans' organizations and traveled the world attending meetings and other veterans' observances. Los Banos, 76, died Tuesday Aug 31, 1999 at St. Francis-West Hospital. Los Banos also fought the Japanese as a member of the U.S. Army's 1st Filipino Regiment during World War II after he was drafted in 1944. "He was a soldier's man," said his brother, Domingo. Sen. Daniel Inouye described Los Banos as "Hawaii's number one veteran. He served in the Philippines with very little fanfare and publicity. For those of us who have been in uniform, we are well aware of his heroic contributions. His presence at gatherings of veterans will be sorely missed. I lost a good friend." "He is the kind of individual who grows on you," said Bob Hamakawa, head of the Korean War Veterans Club. "Even with his handicap, he never complained. "I put him on a pedestal. I really admire that man. He was a real role model." After serving in the Philippines, Los Banos was discharged in 1944, but re-enlisted four years later. On Aug. 14, 1950, Los Banos was wounded. After 16 months of rehabilitation at several Army hospitals, Los Banos was medically retired as a master sergeant. He served with the Veterans Administration as a counselor and later as director of prosthesis for the Pacific region. In April 1990, Los Banos underwent amputation of both legs below the knees because of infection in both feet. Retired Brig. Gen. Irwin Cockett, who grew up on Kauai with Los Banos, said he always considered Los Banos as his mentor. "He was my drill instructor when I took basic training at Schofield and we went to Korea together," said Cockett. Later, as both worked on various veterans' observances, Cockett, who once served as head of the Hawaii Army National Guard, said, "I never did anything without consulting him first because he always knew the pulse of the veterans' organizations we were working with." Survivors include his widow, Caroline; one son, Alfred "Buddy Jr.;" two daughters, Pamela Sandridge and Winifred Mattos; two brothers, Domingo and Bernard; two sisters, Beatrice Ranis and Conchita; and 8 grandchildren. Los Banos was one of the founders of the Disabled American Veterans chapter in Hawaii, served as commander and state commander. He also organized the chapter of the Military Order of Purple Heart serving as its first commander. In 1990, he helped lobby a bill through the Legislature for special automobile license plates for Purple Heart recipients and all veterans. In 1994 President Clinton appointed Los Banos to serve on the American Battles Monument Commission. Friends may call from 6 p.m. Sept. 9 at Hawaiian Memorial Park Mortuary. A tribute from various military organizations will be held at 7 p.m. On Sept. 10, services will be held at 10 a.m. at Holy Nativity Church. Charles Luckman, a multi-faceted architect who designed Aloha Stadium as the first facility with stands that reconfigure for baseball or football events, died Tuesday Jan. 26, 1999 at his Los Angeles home. He was 89. A family spokesman said Luckman died in his sleep. An entrepreneur once called the boy wonder of American business, Luckman headed soap companies and designed space centers and skyscrapers. The Kansas City native gained an architecture degree from the University of Illinois. But after graduating in 1931, he designed brochures for soap products. Luckman became a super salesman and by age 33 was president of the dentifrice firm Pepsodent. Four years later, he was president of Lever Bros. In 1937, Luckman saw a comedian named Bob Hope in a Broadway musical. The Bob Hope radio show followed, with Pepsodent as its longtime sponsor. In 1947, President Truman tapped Luckman to help feed war-devasted Europe. He was honored with Britain's Order of St. John, France's Legion of Honor and Italy's Star of Solidarity. The Europe task was his second government calling. In 1946, he had been named to the President's Committee on Civil Rights. In its 1947 report, that committee sought to uphold civil liberties by backing anti-lynching, anti-poll tax and anti-discrimination bills. It called for a permanent Fair Employment Practices Commission, voting rights for native Americans in the Southwest and citizenship for all who qualify, including residents of U.S. possessions in the Pacific. Luckman left the soap business in 1950 and turned to his first love, architecture. In addition to Aloha Stadium, his landmark creations included the Cape Canaveral Space Center in Florida, the Johnson Space Center in Houston, Los Angeles Airport, the Prudential Center in Boston, the Phoenix Civic Center and the new Madison Square Garden in New York. In a 1955 Star-Bulletin interview, Luckman reminisced about his career, his tenure as president of Pepsodent and Lever Brothers, and opening his own firm. "I work long hours -- up at 5 . . . to read reports, get to the office at 8:30, leave about 7," he said. "Retire? About every six months I say I should. I don't think I ever will, too much drive inside." Luckman is survived by wife Harriet and sons Charles Jr., James and Stephen.

Marion "Molly" Lyman and her son, David, then 5, saw a boy at the beach tumbled by a wave and yanked out by his mother. Lyman told her son: "When that happens to you, I watch you. When you need me I'm there. But you usually can take care of yourself." Known as "Auntie Molly," she watched over her family, friends, school students and people in the community she knew through her love for life and volunteerism. Lyman, 82, died Saturday, Jan 16, 1999 after fighting lung cancer since August. "She was one of those people who everyone knew," said her son, David Lyman III. "She gave us a true sense of aloha for whoever we came in contact with, and a sense of community responsibility." Lyman received the highest honor by the Punahou Alumni Association in 1985, recognizing outstanding community service and service to Punahou. She was a study hall supervisor of seventh and eighth grades and an assistant librarian until she retired. "She was hugely popular with the students because she was a great listener," said Marion Lyman-Mersereau, her daughter. "She was a very understanding person. They came to her with their problems and most of the time through her listening, figured the answers out themselves," she said. Lyman spent her active retirement with her family and her many volunteer activities, including storytelling to kindergartners at Punahou. She ushered for the Honolulu Theatre for Youth, helped at the Hawaii Maritime Center, and served as a docent at the Lyon Arboretum. She was on the flower committee at Central Union Church, and on the board of directors for the Lyon Arboretum and the Punahou Alumni Association. She was born Marion Webster in Honolulu. Her father came to Hawaii a few years before her birth to serve as president of Kamehameha Schools. He later became dean of students at the University of Hawaii. Webster Hall is named after him. She married David "Bel" Belden Lyman Jr., whose missionary family arrived in Hawaii in 1832 from Connecticut. Marion Lyman played the part of Sister Baldwin in "The Harp in the Willows" in 1947, a play based on the life of Rev. Lorenzo Lyons. Lyman-Mersereau wrote a poem for her mother's funeral service to be held at 5 p.m. Thursday at Central Union Church's main sanctuary. "She was a giver first, of time, money, understanding, love and of life. A lover next of family, friends, people and all their foibles, laughter, plants, flowers and the ocean. A lady always, classy, gracious, graceful and elegant." Lyman is survived by sons David, Daniel, James "Kimo;" daughter Marion Lyman-Mersereau; 11 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.
