Russell Reetz, a sailor aboard the USS Ward, which is credited with firing the first U.S. shots of World War II at Pearl Harbor, has died. He was 88. He died Nov. 4 of complications related to lymphoma and heart and lung problems. Reetz was 25 years old when his fellow crew members, including 82 reservists from St. Paul, fired two shots at a Japanese two-man submarine trying to sneak into Pearl Harbor a little more than an hour before the attack on Dec. 7, 1941. One shot sunk the submarine, but it wasn't until two years ago that the wreckage was found by the Hawai'i Undersea Research Laboratory. Reetz was elated by the discovery, said his daughter, Cindy Tritz. He asked her to write a letter to a skeptical admiral he met, because the admiral told him he didn't think it was possible that the Ward's shells could sink a submarine, she said. "The letter said, 'Have you heard that they found it?' " Tritz said. "He got a very nice response from the admiral that said, 'I'm glad to believe the impossible can happen.' " In his later years, his involvement with the Ward become more important to him, said his widow, Loretta Reetz. "That was what kept him going," she said. He became the secretary-treasurer of the First Shot Naval Vets, a club formed in 1947 by the men of the Ward. The group helped have the gun from the Ward brought in 1958 to St. Paul, where it sits on the Capitol grounds. Born and raised in West St. Paul, Reetz joined the Naval Reserves in 1940. He will be buried today at Fort Snelling National Cemetery. [Adv Nov. 9, 2004]

EVELYN VINCENT REGO 94, lifelong Hawaii resident, passed away February 15, 2004, in the comfort of her Manoa Valley home with members of her family present. Mrs. Rego was widowed, her husband of 67 years having passed away in December 2001. Born Evelyn Agnes Vincent on August 12, 1909, Mrs. Rego was the eldest of four children. As a child, she lived on campus with her father, Mr. Joaquin Vincent, the principal of Waikea school, and her mother, Isabel "Mana" Vincent, a teacher at the school. Mrs. Rego attended school on Maui, and graduated from the University of Hawaii, Manoa campus. Living in Kula, Maui, Mrs. Rego continued the family tradition in education, devoting her life to teaching Hawaii's children. She served as a 2nd grade teacher at Maui's last English-standard school, Kaunoa. Then, in 1958, Mrs. Rego relocated with her family to Oahu, where she taught 3rd grade at Noelani School in Manoa Valley. In 1934, Mrs. Rego married Albert Rego, co-founder of Rego's Purity Foods, helping make the company a staple of Hawaiian cuisine for over 45 years. They had two daughters, Betty (Rego) Wrixon, now a resident of Oahu, and Charlotte (Rego) Cox, now a resident of California. After retirement in 1979, Mrs. Rego traveled extensively around the world, including a 1988 trip on the French Concorde from Vancouver to Honolulu with her daughter Betty. Mrs. Rego enjoyed shopping and dining, frequenting Ala Moana Center and such local Hawaii stores as Liberty House. Mrs. Rego was Roman Catholic, often attending services at local Catholic churches in Honolulu, including the Cathedral of Our Lady of Peace in downtown Honolulu. Mrs. Rego is survived by her brother, Charles Vincent of California, her two children, five grandchildren, and 5 great-grandchildren, and her longtime caregiver, Bertha Taufaaasau. [Adv 23/03/2004]

MARIAN H. REICH Marian H. Reich passed away on Saturday, November 27, 2004, in Los Angeles, California, twenty days short of her 90th birthday. Born in New York, 49 years after the Civil War, she was a resident of Honolulu for 28 years and a legend in the fashion industry, introducing Revillion Furs to Hawaii in her boutique at Carol and Mary. Her fashion shows, charitable events and modeling photographs on top of Mauna Kea, attracted international attention. She received her Bachelors degree from Adelphi University in New York in 1936, while operating her fathers wholesale fur business. During the depression and World War II her clients included Frank Sinatra, Babe Ruth and Les Paul and Mary Ford. She ran the Revillion Fur Boutique in New York City and later proposed it's inclusion in Carol and Mary, in 1973. She was active in charitable and community affairs, and a member of numerous professional and civic societies and boards. Integrity and honor were the principles by which she lived her life. She possessed an inner sense of compassion, a quiet vibrant demeanor, and a deep sensitivity towards her family and friends. She created an aura of love and serenity in all who came to know and love her. Her true passion was her family, and she was a devoted and enduring companion to her husband Gustave for almost 64 years, who preceded her and passed away in Honolulu, in 2000, and a beloved mother and source of inspiration to her son, Doctor Laurence Reich, of Los Angeles, California, and a loving sister, to Eleanor Jelline of Rochester, New York. While her family grieves and mourns her passing, they take great comfort in the knowledge that her life was a true celebration of the respect she showed to her fellow man. In lieu of flowers the family requests that donations be made to any charity of their choice. [Adv Dec. 2, 2004]

CLARE MOORE RIENZI Age 84, wife of retired Lt. General Thomas M. Rienzi, died June 3, 2004. She was preceded in death by son, Thomas; parents, Mr. & Mrs. Philip John Moore; brother, Thomas and sister, Mary. Clare was raised in Long Branch, New Jersey, but as an Army wife lived in many places including Fort Monmouth, New Jersey; Fort Bragg, North Carolina; West Point, New York; Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania; Fort Belvoir, Virginia; Schofield Barracks & Fort Shafter, Hawaii; and Albuquerque, New Mexico. After an exciting tour in Brussels, Belgium with NATO, Tom retired in 1979 and they moved back to their beloved Hawaii. As a military wife, Clare was an active partner with Tom maintaining the welfare of the military families they were involved with. Her efforts helped to build cohesiveness and team spirit among the active military personnel and their families. While at NATO, Clare took great pleasure in entertaining the wives and families of the NATO community and in participating in the cultural and morale building events that are so much a part of the NATO mission. In Hawaii, Clare focused her energies on various activities with the Roman Catholic Church. She was a member of Star of the Sea Church in Kahala and served on the board of the Catholic Women's Guild of Hawaii. She was also a member of the Third Order of Mary and a Lady of the Knights and Ladies of the Holy Sepulcher where she participated in their activities in the Holy Land. As a young woman Clare signed with the USO and traveled the country entertaining the troops with her tap dancing abilities. Her sisters recall her love of life, her devotion to family, and her commitment to giving back to the world. Max Cleland, former United States Senator from Georgia and the first Aide de Camp of the then Brigadier General Rienzi, remembers Clare as a very strong, independent, and loving woman. He said "I'll miss her like my own mother" when he heard of Clare's death. Survived by her husband, Thomas M. Rienzi; daughter, Sherri Rienzi (Robert) Bulkley; sisters, Nina Kuster and Alice (Charles) Donohoe; grandchildren, Thomas Rienzi III, Michelle Rienzi (David) Cantor, and Lisa Rienzi; she has 5 great grandchildren and many nieces and nephews. Harry "Pop" Robello, one of the original Waikiki beachboys who worked and played with the likes of Duke Kahanamoku, Chick Daniels and Splash Lyons, died April 26, 2004. He was 86. Robello was born on Aug. 31, 1917, in Honolulu. He attended McKinley High School, but at 14 he ran away from home and wound up on the beach. Robello's life was the beach and chumming up with the rich and famous who could afford to take a vacation in Hawai'i in the 1930s and 1940s. His son, Harry "Didi," said his father was one of the original ambassadors of aloha. "A lot of what they did then is what we do now, but they did it with a lot more grace and style," said Didi Robello, who operates Aloha Beach Services, a concession that Pop Robello started in 1958 at the Moana Hotel. One of Pop Robello's good friends was silent-movie star Dorothy Mackaill, who lived at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel for 35 years. Robello was one of four beachboys who were named in her will. Didi Robello said that on at least three occasions, his father was invited by visitors to spend some time with them on the Mainland. "My dad would tell me that people would come and take them back on the boat. He'd go to a farewell party with just the clothes he was wearing and the next thing you know they were blowing the horn and he says he has to get off, but these people are saying, 'Nah, you're coming with us' and he'd go and spend a few months up there with them. Then they'd ship him back when he was ready to come home," Didi Robello said. Back in the golden days of Waikiki there were just two hotels — the Moana and Royal Hawaiian — and the only contact many visitors had was with the beachboys, Didi Robello said. He credited them as being the "founders" of modern tourism in Hawai'i. "The tourist industry is where it's at today because of the good times that these guys have shown everybody," he said. "If these guys didn't show all these people a good time, we could be like Jamaica or something, growing coffee." Didi Robello, 41, took over the business in 1983 and his father repaired canoes and surfboards in his retirement. Didi Robello said the business continues to thrive and he credits his father for much of that. "He pretty much taught me how to be nice to everybody," Robello said. "You can't make everybody happy, but try to make most of them as best as you can. And he said to make sure everything is clean. Keep your beach clean, keep your stand clean, keep your boys clean." In addition to his beachboy activities, Robello worked as a stunt man and extra in several Hollywood movies. Pop Robello is survived by sons, Harry "Didi" and William "Billy"; daughter, Sybil; and seven grandchildren. Visitation is from 10:30 a.m. Saturday at Star of the Sea Catholic Church. Mass is at 12:30 p.m. Burial is at Diamond Head Memorial Park at 2:15 p.m. [Adv May 5, 2004]

Frederick "Cowboy" Rosa, a longtime Waikiki beach boy who was known for his surfing as well as his cooking, died May 16, 2004 in Honolulu. He was 66. Rosa was born in downtown Honolulu and was the fourth of 10 children. In the 1940s, the family moved to Waikiki and Rosa began his lifetime love affair with the beach. Rosa started by shining shoes and one of his regular customers was Duke Kahanamoku. Back then, Rosa was known simply as "Boy," and later picked up the prefix "Cow-" from a beach boy. Although he had only a ninth-grade education, Rosa made a career as a tile setter as well as beach boy. In a 1998 interview, Rosa said he couldn't think of anything better than being a beach boy. "This is the best time in my life. I enjoy every day. I love to teach people to surf," he said. "I'll do this until I die." Peggy Ryan, who had a recurring role on CBS' "Hawaii Five-O" and teamed with dance partner Donald O'Connor in movie musicals, has died at age 80 in Las Vegas. Ryan played Jenny Sherman, secretary to Jack Lord's Steve McGarrett, in the Honolulu police drama "Hawaii Five-O" from 1969 through 1976. She also teamed with O'Connor in such movie musicals as "This Is the Life" and "When Johnny Comes Marching Home." Ryan died Oct. 30, 2004 in Las Vegas' Sunrise Hospital, said hospital spokeswoman Cheryl Smith. The cause was complications from two strokes, friend Dottie Fusch said. Ryan, who had taught tap dancing and produced revues in Las Vegas for the last several years, was teaching and performing until several days before entering the hospital, Fusch said. Ryan danced and acted in more than two dozen films, but her most memorable roles were with O'Connor. The duo was known for high-energy, complex routines in films such as 1943's "Mister Big" and 1944's "Chip Off the Old Block," "The Merry Monahans" and "Bowery to Broadway." Her final movie was "All Ashore" with Mickey Rooney in 1953. Her career covered both sides of the stage lights — as a dance school instructor, a frequent performer, and a choreographer for musicals at Honolulu Community Theatre (which now is Diamond Head Theatre). One of her innovations was the sand dance number in a 1975 Honolulu Community Theatre production of Meredith Willson's "Music Man," which featured John Rampage, current artistic director of the theater group, and attracted the composer of the musical to a performance. Ryan was the ex-wife of Midweek and former Advertiser columnist Eddie Sherman. She was born Margaret O'Rene Ryan on Aug. 28, 1924, in Long Beach, Calif. By age 3, she was dancing professionally in her parents' vaudeville act. Ryan's TV appearances included the 1948 premieres of two variety shows, Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town" and Milton Berle's "Texaco Star Theater." Ryan is survived by her daughter, Kerry English, son, Sean Sherman, and five grandchildren. [Adv Nov. 9, 2004]
