Trinidad Q. Alconcel, former Philippine consul general in Honolulu who later served as the country's ambassador to Argentina, has died. He was 89. Alconcel died Thursday at his home in Honolulu, the Philippine Consulate General in Honolulu said in a news release. "Alconcel is well loved by the Filipino community in the state of Hawai'i for his various efforts to promote greater rapport among community members," the consulate said. Born in Caoayan, Ilocos Sur, Alconcel graduated cum laude and salutatorian from the University of Manila. He joined the Philippine foreign service in the 1940s and served with the Department of Foreign Affairs from 1947 to 1956. He was a senior assistant, then chief of division in the department. He was assigned to Honolulu in 1966 with the rank of career minister and consul general. After being promoted to chief of mission in 1972 he was transferred to San Francisco the following year. Alconcel returned to Hawai'i in 1976 after his wife, Soledad, was diagnosed with cancer. Known for introducing "innovative measures that benefited and gained recognition for the foreign consuls in Hawai'i," Alconcel twice was elected dean of the consular corps — in 1971 and 1980 — the consulate said. Waikiki Beachcomber Hotel became her mainstay for over 20 years where her knowledge raised her to assistant controller. Married to Dennis Almodova of Kapahulu for over 26 years, JoAnn turned to Mother Mary for strength as her lupus slowly took over her life. Challenged, she gave birth to her loving daughter, Joy, and a loving son, Sean-Dominic. Her love for life continued even though various complications slowed her daily. Her interests included Tupperware, pottery crafts, home-made stamped greeting cards, being a hula mom, income tax preparer, and baker. She supported the Saint Louis classes of 1984, 1989 and 2004 along with her husband. She lived her life through her family, friends, and the Almodova family. She fought her best to never allow her health to get in her way. Friends always surrounded her with love. She came to rest on Thursday, February 5, at Saint Francis Hospital and is finally at peace. JoAnn is suffering no more. JoAnn is a remarkable wife, mother, sister, and most of all, friend. She is survived by brothers: Abel Quiocho, wife, Sallie of Honolulu; William Quiocho of Honolulu; James L. Martinez of Kauai; sisters: Mary Jean "Darlene" Quiocho Fitzgerald, husband Bob of Sacramento, CA.; Agnes "Kuulei"

Quiocho Snyder of San Antonio, TX.; Augustin and Bessie Almodova and Family. Burial: AT DIAMOND HEAD MEMORIAL PARK. With Love, Dennis, Joy, Sean-Dominic and Family [Adv 19/02/2004]

Dr. Elisabeth Kehrer "Betty" Anderson, a former state public health administrator, died Monday at her Punchbowl home after a 10-year battle with Parkinson's disease. She was 77. Anderson came to Hawai'i after earning her medical degree from the University of Louisville to begin her residency as a physician at what is now known as The Queen's Medical Center. The appeal of administering public health, however, drew Anderson away from practicing medicine. It was the perfect choice, said former Family Court Judge Betty Vitousek, Anderson's longtime friend. "She was always reaching out to do something for others," Vitousek said of Anderson, who served as chief of the state's Health Quality Assurance Division from 1980 until her retirement in 1993. Before joining the state Health Department, Anderson was a Hawaii Medical Association assistant director and clinical director at the Rehabilitation Center of the Pacific. "My mom was a strong advocate of providing healthcare in the community wherever it was needed," said Bruce Anderson, a former state health director. "She was a role model for me and the reason why I chose a career in public health. She was selfless in action, always forthright." Betty Anderson was an active member of the Sierra Club, the Outdoor Circle, the Hawaii Trail and Mountain Club and Hawaii Nature Center, before her illness. Her love of flowers inspired her to draw and paint them from age 14. In addition to her son, Bruce, Anderson is survived by daughters Catherine Anderson and Mary Elisabeth Brown, and five grandchildren. Funeral arrangements are pending. [Adv Jun 10, 2004]

Malia Atuatasi -- Thirteen-year-old Malia Atuatasi of Waianae lost her battle to leukemia after she underwent two bone marrow transplants. She died Monday Oct. 18, 2004 at a children's hospital in Seattle. She attended Waianae Intermediate School. She was diagnosed with leukemia when she was 6 years old. Her father, Milovale, who works as a cement truck driver for Ameron Hawaii, went on family leave a few weeks before a concrete strike was held by unionized workers, to care for his daughter. Malia underwent her first bone marrow transplant in February. Fellow workers held a fund-raiser that month to help pay for her medical bills. On Oct. 5, she underwent a second transplant after she suffered a relapse during the summer. The transplant was successful, but her organs began to fail from the radiation and chemotherapy treatments she had undergone prior to her transplant, said her mother, Frances. Frances Atuatasi described her daughter as a quiet yet stubborn girl who was determined to overcome her battle with cancer. "She refused to give up," she said. "She said, 'This was the one that is going to cure me.'" Malia enjoyed swimming and canoe paddling and listened to country and Disney songs. "She was a really good child," her mother said. Those who would like to make a donation to assist the Atuatasi family with Malia's medical bills can go to any Bank of Hawaii branch under the name Ho'Aloha O Malia. She is also survived by sister Marleina and brother Micah. Funeral arrangements are pending. [SB Oct.21, 2004]
