KEUR, CORNELIUS "CORNIE", founder of the religious radio station KAIM, Hawaii's first full-time FM radio station, died Aug. 17 at his home in Phoenix, Ariz. He was 60. During World War II, Keur served as a chaplain's assistant in the Navy at Pearl Harbor. At that time, Keur and three fellow servicemen first envisioned a religious broadcast station in Honolulu. After leaving the military, the four set up the Christian Broadcasting Association, traveled around the country raising money, and applied to the Federal Communications Commission for permission to operate a radio station. In November 1953, KAIM began operating on 95.5 megacycles with 6,000 watts, later boosted to 37,000 watts. Three years later, KAIM added a 1,000-watt AM station, becoming the first AM-FM radio station in Hawaii. Keur Left the Islands in 1967 when he was named director of broadcasting for Northwestern College Radio in Minneapolis. A Moody Bible Institute graduate, Keur served for several years as an organist, singer and choral director at WMBI, the school's radio station. He also was an accomplished keyboard artist and composer of several gospel songs.
